

MnM Fighter Rework

SUMMARY

MnM's current version of the Fighter lacks a distinct and cohesive class identity. By augmenting two of the class-specific systems already present on Fighter– Berserk and Stances – we are able to create a versatile tank/brawler with a playstyle that is both familiar but unique to the MnM class catalog.

DESIGN GOALS

- 1) Create an identity comprised of elements already present and unique to the Fighter
- 2) Develop a more engaging and dynamic playstyle that is thematic with Fighter's identity
- 3) Ensure Fighter fills the role of tank/dps while offering a distinct play experience from other tanks

Balance is a critical component of class design but is not the primary focus of this document.

PROPOSED CHANGES

The Fighter's abilities are modified to interact with the following three stances:

Offensive	Defensive	Berserk
Cooldown: 1.5s Duration: n/a	Cooldown: 1.5s Duration: n/a	Cooldown: 180s Duration: 20s
+10% dmg dealt +5% dmg taken +5 offense skill	-10% dmg dealt -10% all dmg taken +5 defense skill +5 all resist	+20% dmg dealt -15% all dmg taken
		All critical hits are crippling blows
		Dispels all CC effects when entered
Can be entered/exited manually	Can be entered/exited manually	Cannot be entered/exited manually Entered when reaching 40% HP

- 7-ability stancebar for each stance
- Abilities have different effects depending on the stance they are used in
- Only the active stance's hotbar is visible
- Abilities share CDs across different stances
- Any ability can be assigned to Offensive and/or Defensive Stance
- Berserker stancebar can only contain abilities already bound to Offensive or Defensive Stance

GAMEPLAY

The example below demonstrates a dps-oriented ability loadout and should not be considered the optimal setup for all scenarios.

Current Gameplay	Gameplay with Proposed Changes
 10-ability bar 1. Rend - primary dmg ability 2. Armor break - high prio group dmg debuff, stop after 3 3. Disarm - small dmg reduction debuff 4. Taunt - peel 5. Defense - big defense cd 6. Kick - low cd interrupt 7. Frenzy - primary dmg ability 8. Clobber - stun/interrupt 9. Charge - movement, can't ministun/interrupt 10. Battle Cry - long duration group str buff Current Issues with Fighter: 1. Non-dynamic and repetitive ability rotation 2. Abilities to less damage than auto-attack rounds 3. Zero magic damage reduction 4. Threat management is trivial	Offensive Stance  1. Rend - primary dmg ability, can stack bleed 2. Armor Break - high prio dmg boosting debuff, stack up to 3 and keep using 3. Disarm - decent low cd high value cd 4. Kick - low cd interrupt 5. Double Down - huge damage cd 6. Battle Cry - long duration group str buff 7. Frenzy - primary dps ability, long duration haste buff Defensive Stance  1. Taunt - peel and small defensive cd, helps with spot tanking 2. Defense - big defense cd, want this for berserker 3. Rend - some damage, frenzy cd reduction, stacking riposte buff 4. Clobber - medium cd stun, swap into defensive to use this 5. Unnerving Shout - low prio debuff, can swap defensive for this if needed 6. Charge - nice mobility and peel, want this in berserker 7. Final Stand - huge survivability cd for group Berserker Stance* *cannot be swapped into manually  1. Rend - big damage and buffs, benefits from rend stacks from other stances 2. Armor Break - big dmg and debuffs 3. Kick - want to be able to interrupt while we are locked in berserker 4. Unnerving Shout - instant aoe dmg reduction 5. Defense - big defense cd, extends berserker 6. Charge - big movement + aoe stun 7. Frenzy - big damage

In the reworked version of Fighter, abilities like Kick and Charge have secondary uses, Unnerving Shout and Armor Break are useful beyond their first/third cast, and abilities like Rend and Frenzy can build up debuffs and stacks. These changes give the Fighter impactful ability choices even when Rend and Frenzy are on cooldown.

CONCLUSION

This reworked version of the Fighter has a cohesive identity and interactive gameplay revolving around tactical stances. These changes increase player agency both in the spellbook and on the battlefield, giving players more opportunities to personalize their gameplay and respond dynamically to combat situations. Fighter remains a strong but distinct option as a tank class while also maintaining its ability to fill the role of brawler/offtank.
